When ambition meets ambition

With more than one million users and the largest network of teachers integrating sofatutor's content into their lessons, sofatutor has long been the leading provider of digital learning applications. Sofatutor is already seeing huge demand for its digital learning tools, which has been boosted still further by home-schooling and the pandemic. We would like to continue the success story.

Together we build leading companies

Through additional innovative offerings, sofatutor plans to meet the demand for online learning tools and improve access to first-class education. Extending the digital product range and expanding digital learning models offers significant further growth potential.

The consortium around EMERAM and Gimv is therefore particularly pleased to support sofatutor, an excellently led company which, with its digital offering, is perfectly addressing the United Nations goals with respect to high quality education and digital innovation.
